Welcome To The Kentucky National Shorthorn Show and Sale

On behalf of the Kentucky Department of Agriculture, I am pleased to have the opportunity of welcoming you to the Kentucky National Shorthorn Show and Sale. I am sure that Shorthorn breeders throughout the Commonwealth share in the sense of pride we get from being able to participate in an event which holds national prominence.

As we look at agriculture today, I am sure that each of us recognizes the importance of livestock to our agricultural economy. Beyond the dollars and cents which cattle means to producers, there is the vital contribution which beef makes to this nation's food supply.

As our cattlemen are called upon to produce greater amounts of beef in the years ahead, I think it important that we recognize the role which quality breeding stock will play. Needless to say, commercial cattlemen need purebred animals with high performance blood lines if they are to maintain or expand their production.

We of the Department of Agriculture believe that our purebred show and sale program, of which the Kentucky National Shorthorn Show and Sale is a significant part, is making a major contribution to the advancement of beef cattle production.

Kentucky's beef cattle industry has increased rapidly during the past decade with Kentucky now ranking eleventh nationally in the total number of beef cows. We believe that the Kentucky National Show and Sale program has made a major contribution to the progress of our beef industry.

We appreciate the cooperation extended by the American Shorthorn Association and others interested in beef cattle which makes it possible for us to conduct this national show and sale event.

We also want to thank the consignors and to challenge prospective buyers to take full advantage of what this show and sale can offer them.

WENDELL P. BUTLER

His dam is proving to be a good producing daughter of Denend Constellation. His 203-day actual weight was 525 pounds; weight Dec. 18 was 700 pounds. The Arawak Roan Cloud 26thX x calves are showing every indication of growing. Sells dehorned.
